

POISONED BLOOD

Is a source of much suffering. The system should be thoroughly cleansed of all impurities, and the blood kept in a healthy condition. S. S. S. removes Chronic Sores, Ulcers, etc., purifies the blood, and builds up the general health. It is without an equal.

For instance, of Palmer, Kan., says: "My foot and leg to my knee was a running sore for two years, and physicians said it could not be cured. After taking fifteen small bottles of S. S. S. there is not a sore on my limbs, and I have a new lease on life. I am seventy-seven years old, and have had my age renewed at least twenty years by the use of S. S. S."

OTHER STATE NEWS.

A Colored Preacher Scares His Congregation at Lawrence.

WELLINGTON, Nov. 6.—As W. S. Rowel, keeper of the fire house, was walking along the street near Ellis & Rush's livery barn about 1 o'clock at night, some man suddenly attacked him. The man grabbed at Mr. Rowel's watch, catching the chain and throwing the watch upon the ground several feet away.

He struck Mr. Rowel upon the head, bringing him to his knees, but placing his hand upon a stone, Mr. Rowel raised to his feet and laid his assailant low. He struck the unknown culprit several blows on the head, and then stepped over to recover his watch, when the would-be robber fled.

COLORED PEOPLE SCARED.

Their Preacher, Whose Family Have Diphtheria, Appeared in the Pulpit.

LAWRENCE, Nov. 6.—Rev. J. F. Sage, the colored preacher, created a sensation Sunday, by appearing in his pulpit. There is a case of diphtheria at his home and it is quarantined for the protection of the town. Further than this all members of the family have been absolutely prohibited from mingling with others, for fear that the disease might spread.

When Marshal Anderson was informed of the proceeding he went to the church and persuaded the preacher to leave the congregation and go home. Mr. Sage said in explaining his conduct that he understood the physician to give permission for what was done, but such turned out not to be the case.

The consternation created among the members of the flock lasted quite a while, and they were much frightened over the results that might come from the action.

"Well, you have got a gold watch and chain," said one of the men, who held a pistol in his hand. "Give me that and get along."

Taylor is a large, powerful man and he noticed that the sidekicks here is raised

"There has been a larger amount of campaign matter sent through the Topeka office this year than ever before during a campaign," said Assistant Postmaster Wolfe today. "A large amount of it has been stamped matter, and our mailing force has been working night and day to handle the immense quantities sent in."

The Republican committee has purchased more stamps than any other committee, but the others are not far behind.

"The business of the office for October has been larger than for any months since from that during which the legislature is in session. The receipts for October will be between $1,500 and $2,000 more than during an ordinary month."

A HEAVY BLIZZARD.

New England and Eastern New York Visited by Heavy Snow.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—The storm in Boston and vicinity was confined to heavy rains until about 10 o'clock last night, when the temperature became lower, and the snow began to fall. It is still falling.

A heavy snow storm prevailed all night in the vicinity of Concord, N. H.; Portland, Me., and Montpelier, Vt. Messages from points connected by long distance telephone this morning report that a regular blizzard was raging throughout the state. New Haven reports that a genuine blizzard is raging there and this condition appears to prevail in all directions. The wind is blowing at the rate of 70 miles an hour. The last Western Union wire from here to New York ceased working just east of New Haven soon after 10 o'clock and at a quarter of 11 o'clock the last of fifteen wires (Postal) between Boston and New York went out of service.

Information comes from Hartford that two inches of snow fell there between 10 and 10:30 o'clock last night. At midnight a perfect blizzard was raging and one could not see ten feet ahead. The wind blew at a rate of seventy miles an hour. Telegraph, telephone and electric wires are lying on the ground in a tangled mass. It is reported that many houses were killed by receiving shocks of electricity from wires lying in the streets.

A report from Springfield states that a heavy snow prevails there and is hourly becoming worse.

In New York.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 6.—A slight fall of snow occurred here last night. The temperature was 35 degrees at 2 o'clock and the weather bureau says it will be much colder today with cloudy weather and probably snow.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 6.—A snow storm raged in the Catskills all day yesterday and part of last night, fully three inches of snow falling in Pine Hill and many other places.

VERMONT, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Dispatches from Rouses Point, Plattsburg, and other points along the Lake Champlain valley state that it stormed hard last night. A heavy snow storm has raged in the vicinity of Saranac lake all night. Snow is now four inches deep, which will make the roads deep in mud and almost impassable.

BREIDENTHAL'S BET.

He Bets That Twenty-five So Called Republican Counties Will Go Populist.

State Senator W. E. Sterne this morning made a list of all the counties in the state, giving an estimate of how each county will go with an estimated plurality. According to these figures Major Morrill will have a clear plurality of 24,385.

Chairman Breidenthal this forenoon made a bet of $50 with A. L. Williams that twenty-five of the counties named by Senator Sterne to go Republican would go for Lowellism. He offered to bet a second $50 that the pluralities claimed by Senator Sterne in twenty-five other counties will not be within 100 votes of the actual figures. This second bet was not taken.

ELECTION RETURNS.

The "State Journal" Will Bulletin by Magic Lantern.

According to its custom the STATE JOURNAL will bulletin the returns on election night.

Every effort will be made to secure accurate figures.

The aim will be to get at the truth regardless of partisan feelings. In the issue on the day following election, the STATE JOURNAL will undertake to present the latest and most complete returns, free from political bias.

On election night the returns will be received in the STATE JOURNAL's telegraph office and thrown by means of a stereopticon on a large canvas covering the front of the JOURNAL building.

Republicans, Populists, Democrats, Prohibitionists and Suffragists will all be welcomed. The STATE JOURNAL pays the bills—you do the rest.

MAY DESTROY FAT PLUMS.

Civil Service to Be Extended to Chiefs of Divisions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The intimation given by the civil service commission in announcing the recent extensions in the civil service by the president that further extensions was to be made at an early date has been discussed in the departments and among officials who know and it is said that the commission will include chiefs of divisions in the various departments which would be a very important move.

The salaries paid to these officers are $2,000 each. They have always been held as political plums for the smaller politicians who seek office in Washington and it is claimed that often times one of a year he was able to send his mother and establish her in a home of their own. After that nothing was heard of him in Lawrence for some years. One day he received the following letter from Mr. Marsden:

DEAR ARTHUR—The ring has been found. Edith has had a dreamer. In the house for several days. One of her dresses, a gray silk—she wore it on the evening the ring disappeared—was brought down to be remodeled. In ripping it Edith felt something hard in the puff on the overskirt and drew out the diamond ring. I will not tell you all that followed, but Edith wept bitterly and begged me to recall you at once. Come back, my boy, and take your old place. Within my inmost heart I never believed you. Iry, your friend, GEORGE MARSDEN.

Arthur lost no time in replying to this letter. "I am glad the ring is found," he said, "but nothing can ever compensate me for the shame with which you, through your daughter's influence, branded me by doubting my honesty. I have made a name and a place here and am doing well. Under no consideration would I return to the scene of my mortification. As for Miss Marsden, I decided on the evening when the ring was lost that I could not marry a woman of her unhappy temper. I am engaged to Miss Agnes Gray, the most lovable and amiable of women, and I love her as I never loved before. I think no more need be said between us, now or ever."

It was a bitter moment for Edith when she read her former lover's words. She realized that she had dashed the cup of happiness from her lips by her own hands and must pay the penalty of her rashness. Arthur Burns had passed from her life forever.—Exchange.

A HASTY JUDGMENT.

A party of young people had gathered at the house of a friend. Edith Marsden was going to the piano to play. On taking her seat she turned to her betrothed and said:

"Arthur, will you keep this ring for me until we go home?"

"Certainly," he replied.

He extended his hand to receive it, and she apparently gave it to him.

"Where is it?" he asked, still holding out his hand to be found.

"I gave it to you," she answered in some surprise.

"I beg your pardon, Edith, but you did not give it to me. You must have dropped it."

"I am sure I gave it to you," Edith asserted.

"Don't be so positive. I have not the ring," said Burns.

One of the young ladies suggested that Edith should shake her dress, as it might have fallen among the folds. This was done and a general search made, but the ring was not found.

"This is very strange," said Arthur Burns.

"Very," echoed the rest.

"Couldn't it have caught in any part of your dress, Edith?" he asked.

"No," she answered emphatically. "I gave it to you. You have it."

There was embarrassment on all sides, but young Burns controlled himself and said firmly:

"I have not the ring. No doubt it will be found."

"When you will reveal its hiding place," said Edith. "I don't like practical jokes of this sort, Arthur."

The party dispersed, all discussing the strange disappearance of the ring. Only Edith and Arthur remained. In a haughty manner she turned to him and asked:

"Are you waiting for me?"

"Yes," he replied.

"Then you may go. I prefer to return home alone."

Pale with anger, Arthur left the house. "I have made a mistake," he thought.

Edith has an unquenchable temper. I am convinced that we are made for each other. Our little quarrels used to be confined to ourselves, but now they occur everywhere. I shall break the engagement at once."

The next morning Arthur's first thought was of the occurrence of the previous evening. He felt only annoyance at Edith, for he never doubted the ring would be found after a thorough search. He went to the bank where he occupied the position of cashier, but said nothing of the unhappy affair. After business hours the president, Mr. Marsden, said:

"Arthur, I want to speak to you about the disappearance of Edith's ring."

"I will tell you how it happened," Mr. Marsden replied and hastily gave an account of the occurrence. "I presume it has come to light before this. Edith's treatment of me was most insulting."
